“ Being one of the "younger cousins" in the VanKampen family means that a child's mind's eye is the lens through which many of my extended family memories are viewed. Two specific recollections of Priscilla from my childhood come to mind: 1) I thought it was so cool that several of my older female cousins, including Priscilla, were teachers, since that was what I wanted to be (and did become) when I grew up. 2) When Karen was a baby, we stopped for a visit. I'm not sure what had brought this about, but I remember Priscilla having that little baby all bedded down in a dresser drawer! I don't recall that the drawer was actually IN the dresser. I'm guessing that arrangement might have been for the purpose of keeping Karen from rolling off the bed. Whatever the reason, I have always thought that was a very clever, resourceful idea! It still makes me smile.

Our prayers are and will be with you, Bob and Sue and Matt and Karen, as you walk through these days of loss. May God give your hearts comfort, and peace, and hope.
