“ There is so many memories, there is two memories that come to me, when you use to try to teach our son Wayne how to shoot his pretend cowboy gun, and when you tried to teach me to shoot as well off the Portland Bridge, also how you always picked Wayne up, and carried him when we would go away . I loved you for that. He always enjoyed you picking him up he would make happy sounds, and laugh, and clap his hands. The last memory I would share is when we were married, and Wayne was 5 yrs old he was the ring barer, and he did so good carried the rings in his pocket , and gave them to us. We were married, you picked him up and said we would never be separated again. Love your wife Angela.
