“Hi, my name is Zyyakiah. I was Miria's daughter. Once and a while when im feeling down I come back to this page. Almost 4 long painful year without her. My own mother. The pain I feel daily I know will never quit dissappear, but I know my love she had for me, and the love I have for her will forever remain. Life never will or has been quite the same. I was 10 and going into this whole new chapter of my life without a mom right next to me to show me the way. Let me tell you it doesn't get easier. I still cry. I still greave. And i still get those same tears on my face when amazing grace is sung in church. Life won't quite go one without her by my side. That day a huge chunk of my heart was ripped out of me and no amount of bandaid has been able to remain there. She mentioned the world to me. More then anyone. I could talk to her about anything. And now all I talk to is the sky. But she leave me the most beautiful pictures in the sky to loom at. Her beauty carries on. My mom mentioned a lot to me. Possibly more then anything or anyone else. And I know where she is. And I know she's safe. But that sting will never leave my soul. I love you mom and I hope your having the best time.

Zyyakiah, this is David. I was your mom's bf, while she was alive, and I miss her too very much. And, I can relate to what you are going through honey. I want, to take this time, to apologize for the things, I said about your dad. For the life of me, I don't remember what I said. But, either way it was wrong, and I am sorry. My own mom, got on my case, and lectured me, in a MAJOR way, about the things I said, about your dad. She told me, either I should had said nothing at all, or told your mom, "I am sorry to hear that." She said, the same exact thing, about the things, I said about Paul's dad.

I just hope, and pray, that someday you can find it, in your heart, and to forgive me. I also, hope and pray, that your dad, Paul, and Torri, can find it in their hearts, and to forgive me as well. My heart, is full of remorse.
